"Education is the seed that provides spiritual and individual growth."

February 14, 2013

Dear Colleague,

My proudest achievement is done. It is a book called "Modern American Indian Leaders." I hope you can get your library to order one and enjoy it. This was a work of love on my part. I get no royalties from the book.

Most American Indians and non-Indians know who Chief Joseph, Sitting Bull, Geronimo, Crazy Horse, and Quanah Parker were. But they have no idea who has been leading the good fight for Indian people in the past 100 years.

These books fill a huge vacuum. The books are two volumes, 792 pages total, and they profile 87 prominent Indian leaders of the modern age. Indian children, Indian adults, and indeed all people need to know about the lives of these heroes.

You can request your local high school and college libraries to order it. You can request your local high school and elementary school library to order it. You can request your local tribal library to order it.

Did you know that:

- Lucy Covington (Colville) fought successfully for two decades to keep her tribe's treaty rights from being terminated.
- Elouise Cobell (Blackfeet) fought for over 20 years to get over $3.7 billion in royalty payments to poverty level Indians.
- Jack Montgomery (Cherokee) won the Medal of Honor in Italy in WWII for knocking out three machine gun nests single handedly and capturing dozens of German soldiers.
- Paul Bernal (Taos) fought almost his whole life to have the sacred Blue Lake returned to the tribe, and eventually won.
- Leonard Burch (Southern Ute) fought successfully to have his tribe operate their own oil and gas business, turning them from poverty level into success.

You can order it from www.mellenpress.com. If you want to use it as a textbook, Mellen will sell it to you or your bookstore for half price!

Yours truly,

Dean Chavers

THE SECRET OF NO FACE

(an Ireokwa Epic)

Chief Everett Parker & Oledoska

The Secret of No Face is an authentic tale of the Seneca people of the Cornplanter Reservation. Hundreds of years old and passed on in the oral Indian tradition, The Secret of No Face was published briefly in 1972 and has been released for reprint.

This Native American legend was recounted by Everett Parker, last of the Pine Tree chiefs, and transcribed by his lifelong friend, Oledoska. More than 180 pages long, the book contains full-page illustrations by Oledoska's wife, Oneoda.

Order your copy today! This beautifully printed volume is a must for students of Indian legends, religion, and philosophy. Produced completely in true Indian spirit and design. Use order form on back.
